

Sclerotherapy works by drying out the tiny cells which line the blood vessels. This damages these unnecessary vessels, causing them to close up and then be absorbed naturally by your body. This treatment is usually used for small veins and spider veins, but can be used for larger varicose veins using other types of solutions. Although lasers are often used for vascular lesions